COMMANDER OF TEMPLARS GREETED HERE

L. P. Newby, Head of Order With 403,000 Members, Honored in Bismarck

TELLS OF ACTIVITIES

Order Supporting French War Orphans and Will Aid Cause of Education

Leonidas P. Newby of Knights-town, Ind., grand commander of the Knights Templar of the United States, was a guest in Bismarck today. Bismarck and Mandan Knights Templars and grand officers of North Dakota joined in welcoming the order's supreme head.

Arriving from Seattle in a special car attached to Northern Pacific train No. 2 at 9:30 this morning, Mr. Newby was met by more than 50 Knights Templars of Bismarck in uniform, several past commanders and grand officers of the state, and escorted to the McKenzie hotel. The program for today was: Luncheon at Lewis and Clark hotel, Mandan; banquet at Masonic temple, Bismarck, 6:45 p. m. with address of Mr. Newby to Knights Templars; 9 p. m., address by Mr. Newby to meeting at Masonic temple to which all Master Masons and wives are invited.

Mr. Newby, who was elected head of the Knights Templars at New Orleans last year, is visiting as many states in the jurisdiction as possible, and is particularly going into the states which are not often visited by heads of the order. He is returning from Seattle where grand officers met to discuss plans for the convolve to be held there in 1925.

Supporting Orphans

The Knights Templar is flourishing. Mr. Newby said, there now being 403,000 members in the United States. His present tour began on January 17 in the south.

Among the activities of the order he mentioned is the education of 500 French orphans. The French government pays the overhead cost of the organization, a Knights Templar manager is stationed in France, and the orphans are left as far as possible with their mothers. They are being clothed, educated and fed until they are able to support themselves. When in France last year, Mr. Newby said, he found some of the orphans already were able to support themselves, and others were placed on the list in their place.

Another activity of the Knights Templar is the creation of a revolving fund to aid deserving boys and girls to obtain an education. The last grand convolve set aside $100,000 in funds for this work and made an appropriation of $400,000 a year, he said.

"We say it is a revolving fund," said Mr. Newby, "because from the experience of subordinate Masonic orders in many states in aiding boys and girls to gain an education, we are sure that 95 percent of it will be paid back after the boys and girls have completed their education and are able to earn their own living."

The boys and girls will be selected through local committees, and no security will be taken—the loan will be a debt of honor, he said.

Widely Traveled

Mr. Newby, who is an attorney by profession, has been active in public affairs for many years, and has traveled in practically every foreign country and all over the United States. He was in the diplomatic service under President Roosevelt and has been prominent in Indiana politics, but now has retired from active participation, he said. He is a member of the Foreign Board of Education of the Methodist church and president of the International College in Rome.

With Mr. Newby today was Isaac H. Hettinger, grand sword bearer of the grand encampment, of Kansas City, Mo.; Ralph Minchart, grand commander of the grand commandery, state of Pennsylvania; Dr. George Rowles, grand commander of the state of Wisconsin, and Mrs. Rowles; John Rupe, past grand commander of the state of Indiana, John Orchard of Dickinson, and Otto Bauer of Mandan, grand lodge officers, were among those to greet him here. E. C. Eddy, grand commander of North Dakota, met Mr. Newby at Mandan, and Rev. W. J. Hutchinson, grand prelate, of Fargo, also was here.

FIRE RAGING IN WOODS TO SOUTH OF CITY

A big fire was raging south of the city this afternoon in the woods.

Fear was expressed by some that the fire might spread and envelop houses of several families living in that section. A Bismarck man, seeing the flames, went down to help get cattle grazing in the bottom, away from the possible advance of the flames, and the sheriff's office was notified and asked to send a man there.

The fire had already burned a large patch of timber, and the flames and smoke shot high in the air.

The fire, presumably, was started by the carelessness of some individual, throwing away a lighted cigar or leaving a camp fire burning. There are heavy penalties for starting such fires.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 30.—Plans for bringing Mrs. Clara Phillips, hammer murderer, back from Honduras to serve the ten years to life sentence imposed on her for slaying Mrs. Alberta Tremaine Meadows, were to be considered at the conference today between the sheriff and deputy attorney's office.

Twenty Boys Selected For Fr. Flanagan's Band From 200

The twenty boys composing Father Flanagan's boys' band who will appear at the Auditorium Monday and Tuesday, May 7 and 8 were selected from a group of 200 who spend all their spare time in trying to qualify for the band.

Nearly every hour of the day at the home on Overlook Farm, near Des Moines, Ia., some would-be Caruso or McCormack can be heard trying out his voice on the cows, sheep, or chickens; while in the recreation room one or more boys is sure to be practicing on a band instrument.

Some time ago John McCormack, the famous Irish tenor, visited the home and paid high compliments to the voices of several of the boys with the present troupe.

There is no admission charged—everything being free. In several places where the boys have given their performances thousands have been turned away and several times it was found necessary to give a second performance at the conclusion of the first.

PREUS OUT OF RACE

St. Paul, April 30.—While further arrangements were being made today for the funeral of United States Senator Knute Nelson of Minnesota, speculation continued in political circles as to who would be his successor. Senator Nelson died suddenly Saturday night on a train near York, Pa.

Selection of a successor to Minnesota's senior senator will await the return of Governor J. A. O. Preus, who will accompany the body from Chicago. It is not expected, however, that any announcement will be made for some time.

Prominently mentioned as candidates for the office are Governor Preus, Fred W. Putnam, who resigned last week as state railroad and warehouse commissioner; Frank Kellogg, former U. S. senator; Oscar Hallam, justice of the state supreme court, and L. D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota.

That Governor Preus has denied that he will seek the senatorship.

Although it was announced here last night that the funeral will be held at Alexandria, it was indicated today that the services might not be held until Friday. Close personal friends of the Senator accompanying the body to St. Paul are said to have expressed a desire to hold the funeral on Friday. This would allow time for assembling a congressional delegation to attend.

Body Arrive Tuesday.

In any event the body will reach here Tuesday morning, will be escorted to the rotunda of the state capitol, where it will lie in state all day under guard of a detail from the Third Infantry of the United States army and the Minnesota National Guard.

With the flag at half-mast on the capitol official business of the state was practically paralyzed today and a pall seemed to hang over the executive building as the result of the death of Senator Nelson.

Governor Preus' office is flooded with telegrams of condolence from all over the United States which state that Minnesota and the nation have suffered a great loss in the death of its senior senator.

Survey made by the squads of business men directing the clean-up and paint-up campaign were almost completed by noon today.

Those who have been covering the city this morning report that much cleaning and painting has already been done or is in progress. The yards and the alleys all over town are getting on a clean and inviting appearance, declared Mr. MacLeod, and even a number of houses are being painted.

It is surprising to see what has already been done.

"I do not think that we shall have any occasion to worry about Bismarck becoming the cleanest and most beautiful place in North Dakota," said Mr. MacLeod.

Devils Lake, April 30.—The new high school building that was to have been built at Devils Lake at a cost of $350,000 will not be started this year, it is said by A. E. Parshall, secretary of the school board. "We passed the bond issue to build that school and will have no trouble to sell the bonds, as our bonded indebtedness is very low in Devils Lake. It is believed the robbery occurred after midnight, probably about 3 or 4 o'clock this morning. Reports early today that two automobiles were seen going north gave rise to belief that the robbers used two machines to carry away the loot and that several participated in the robbery.

The front door of the store, on Main street, was pried open, and the robbers carried out the most valuable part of the stock of the store, passing up thousands of dollars worth of choicest goods. It is believed that they worked leisurely, that they have a cache somewhere in this part of the country, and drove to it before daylight to hide during the day.

The matter was called to the attention of State's Attorney J. B. Wineman at the time the investigation of the Wentz case was announced. The board will make further investigation into the matter at the asylum.

This would allow more time for assembling a congressional delegation to attend.

Body Arrive Tuesday
In any event the body will reach here Tuesday morning, will be escorted to the rotunda of the state capitol, where it will lie in state all day under guard of a detail from the Third Infantry of the United States army and the Minnesota National Guard.

With the flag at half-mast on the capitol official business of the state was practically paralyzed today and a pall seemed to hang over the executive building as the result of the death of Senator Nelson.

Governor Preus' office is flooded with telegrams of condolence from all over the United States which state that Minnesota and the nation have suffered a great loss in the death of its senior senator.

Clean-up and Paint-up and Garden Week Gets a Flying Start Here

SURVEY MADE TODAY

Find Much Already Has Been Done in the Spring Clean-up Movement

Clean-up and Paint-up week and Garden Week, opened in Bismarck today.

Surveys made by the squads of business men directing the clean-up and paint-up campaign were almost completed by noon today.

J. J. MacLeod, chairman of the committee, assisted by B. M. Dunn, S. O. Le Barron, and Fred Grady, turned in plots of their territory indicating the places which required attention.

The next step to be taken will be the notification of the property owners through the Association of Commerce of the work which is advised. They will then be given about two weeks in which to accomplish the improvements advised.

Those who have been covering the city this morning report that much cleaning and painting has already been done or is in progress. The yards and the allies all over town are sitting on a clean and inviting appearance, declared Mr. MacLeod, and even a number of houses are being painted.

It is surprising to see what has already been done.

"I do not think that we shall have any occasion to worry about Bismarck becoming the cleanest and most beautiful place in North Dakota," said Mr. MacLeod.

HOUGH, NOTED AUTHOR, DIES

Exponent of Life Outdoor Passes in Evanston Hospital

Chicago, April 30.—Emerson Hough, author, died in a hospital in Evanston today. Mr. Hough was 66 years old and was taken to the hospital last Thursday suffering from an intestinal obstruction. An operation was performed Saturday. Heart and respiratory complications caused death.

Mr. Hough, who was a devotee and disciple of outdoor life, had written several western stories, his most recent, "The Covered Wagon," having just recently been produced in motion pictures. He was born in Newton, Iowa, June 28, 1857. He was graduated from the University of Iowa in 1880. Soon afterwards he began his travels which took him to all parts of the country in search of material for his books.

The matter was taken up by the commander of the Soldiers' Home at Lisbon, and he in turn took it up with Dr. A. W. Guest, superintendent of the Jamestown asylum. The latter wrote in reply that there were no bruises on the body when it left the asylum.

The matter was called to the attention of State's Attorney J. B. Wineman at the time the investigation of the Wentz case was announced. The board will make further investigation into the matter at the asylum.

$30,000 LOSS IN MINOT FLOOD

Minot, N. D., April 30.—Waters in the Mouse River here rose 15 inches over Saturday and Sunday. Damages amounting to $30,000 were sustained by the Peoples Ice Company when the flood waters washed away the building and ice stored within. Observers expect the crest of the high waters to be reached about the middle of this week.

New School Levy Prevents Building Of $350,000 High

Devils Lake, April 30.—The new high school building that was to have been built at Devils Lake at a cost of $350,000 will not be started this year, it is said by A. E. Parrish, secretary of the school board. "We passed the bond issue to build that school and will have to trouble to sell the bonds, as our bonded indebtedness is very low in Devils Lake. But, it would be impossible to maintain the school at the present mill levy on our assessed valuation. Our valuation is very low in Devils Lake at the present time. One city in the state, whose population is not any larger, than ours has nearly double the valuation of Devils Lake," he said.

ACCEPTS PLACE

HAZLETON STORE LOOTED OF $2,000 WORTH OF GOODS BY BAND ENTERING EARLY TODAY

Thieves broke into the Hazleton Leader store early today and stole about $2,000 worth of silks, shirts, ladies' suits and other goods. The robbery was accomplished without knowledge of anyone in the town and no clue was left.

It is believed the robbery occurred after midnight, probably about 3 or 4 o'clock this morning. Reports early today that two automobiles were seen going north gave rise to belief that the robbers used two machines to carry away the loot and that several participated in the robbery.

The front door of the store, on Main street, was pried open, and the robbers carried out the most valuable part of the stock of the store, passing up thousands of dollars worth of cheaper goods. It is believed that they worked legarely.

Police officers in many cities were asked to be on the look-out for the robbers. The theory was advanced that they have a cache somewhere in this part of the country, and drove to it before daylight to hide during the day.

The Hazleton Leader is operated by Mr. Miller, who succeeded Ellis Smolowitz in the store last August.

THIS JURY WAS FRANK, ANYWAY

"We the jury find the man who stole the gun not guilty."

NEW CASE IS INVESTIGATED BY STATE BODY

Alleged Body of Woman From Insane Hospital Bore Marks of Bruises

Grand Forks, N. D., April 30.—The state board of administration had brought before it here the case of Mrs. Betsy Eckler, who formerly lived near Reynolds and died at the state insane hospital at Jamestown in March, 1921. The board had come here chiefly for further investigation in the case of Louis Wentz, whose body, his relatives claimed, was badly bruised when brought here from the state asylum for burial.

Mrs. Eckler, it appears, was some 80 years old, and had been sent with her husband to the state old soldiers' home at Lisbon. Following the death of her husband late in 1921 she was committed to the insane asylum and died there in March, 1922. The body was sent to Thompson, to be buried there beside that of her daughter who had formerly resided in Thompson.

Thompson People Testify
Four residents of Thompson, Mrs. C. P. Wilkins, Mrs. D. C. Cunningham, Mrs. S. Thompson, and S. Limmick, testified Saturday as to the condition of the body when it arrived at Thompson. There was a severe cut over the right eye, and other cuts and bruises on the face, they said. Similar testimony was given by Father Mayer of Reynolds, who also viewed the remains.

The matter was taken up by the commander of the Soldiers' Home at Lisbon, and he in turn took it up with Dr. A. W. Guest, superintendent of the Jamestown asylum. The latter wrote in reply that there were no bruises on the body when it left the asylum.

The matter was called to the attention of State's Attorney J. B. Wineman at the time the investigation of the Wentz case was announced. The board will make further investigation into the matter at the asylum.

SCENT FOUL PLAY IN DEATH

Minot, N. D., April 30.—Tony Smith, aged about 35, of Upham, N. D., was found dead in room 30 of the Waverly hotel here, the victim, it is believed by police of poisoning.

Discovery of the body, lying on a bed, came after the landlady had reported she was unable to gain entrance to the room. A bellboy climbed up on the door knob and peered through the transom, and seeing that the man was apparently dead, called the police.

The contents of Smith's stomach are being analyzed here by C. K. Allen, chemist, to determine whether death resulted from poisoning.

FEDERAL JURY MAY TAKE UP PEONAGE CASE

U. S. District Attorney Announces Interest in Tabert Case Revelations

INVESTIGATOR THERE

Revealed That Department of Justice Has Been Looking Into Charges

Tallahassee, Fla., April 30.—Governor Hardie plans to recommend to the senate the removal from office of County Judge Willis of Leon county, named in testimony before a joint legislative investigating committee, as having agreed with Sheriff J. R. Jones to send vagrants to the convict lease camp of the Putnam Lumber Company at Clara, Florida, it was learned today in an authoritative quarter.

TO ASK REMOVAL
Tallahassee, Fla., April 30.—With the convening of joint legislative committee Tuesday to reopen its inquiry into the office of County Judge F. F. Willis of Leon county in connection with the leasing of prisoners to the Putnam Lumber company and with the announcement of the federal government taking a hand in the Florida convict flogging affairs by proposing a federal grand jury investigation, indications today point to a hard fight when the senate begins consideration of a measure to abolish corporal punishment of convicts.

Opinion is apparently about evenly divided and only the most optimistic predict a victory favoring the proposed measure.

It is declared that prison reformers who are following developments closely are prepared to carry the battle to state administration officials who, they declare, have power to ban use of the whip which it is alleged caused the death of Martin Tabert.

An agent of the Department of Justice arrived here several days ago and has been conducting an inquiry as to whether Ned Thompson, 65-year-old negro who was released by Sheriff Jones to the Putnam Lumber company, was held in peonage. Fred C. Cully, a United States district attorney, is said to be considering making this the subject of a federal grand jury investigation in Pensacola early in May.

Died in Jail
Thompson died in the Leon county jail after he had been returned by the Putnam Lumber company because it was claimed he was not physically fit to perform hard labor. Leon county authorities assert Thompson's death was due to natural causes, but federal officials assert they are in possession of evidence tending to show his death was caused by excess flogging received at the least camp before he was returned to the county jail.

To that extent the decision reversed a decision in the case from New York.

COMMUNISTS ACTIVE IN N. D. WITNESS SAYS

Claimed to Have Obtained
Control of the Nonpartisan
League in State

DEFEATED McCUMBER?

St. Joseph, Mich., April 30.—Jay Lovestone, witness appearing for the defense in the trial of Charles Ruthenberg, accused of violating the Michigan syndicalism law, testified here that the Communist organization obtained control of the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota.

Jay Lovestone, the witness, was appearing as a defense witness for Charles E. Ruthenberg charged with advocating criminal syndicalism.

The defense read Lovestone's report to the community convention at Bridgman last August, where Ruthenberg was arrested. The report disclosed that the Friends of Soviet Russia, Trade Union Relief Committee and Federated Committee were all three subsidiary organizations of the Communist party. The Friends of Soviet Russia alone had collected $725,000 in cash and $450,000 in clothing, medicines and other supplies up to July 15, 1922, the report disclosed.

Witness for Defense.
Lovestone was put on the stand as a defense witness to identify minutes of the executive committee of the Communist party and lay the foundation to prove testimony of Ruthenberg as to the program of the workers party, the legal branch of the underground Communist organization. Ruthenberg is to be recalled when Lovestone completes his testimony.

Lovestone's report to the Bridgman convention, besides disclosing the directing hand behind the relief work, and the purposes for which it was started, also revealed that the Federated Press, a labor press service, is controlled and guided by the American Communists and their Moscow associates.

The Federated Press is known in Community circles by the code word "Fred." The prosecution has known for some time what the "Fred" was but was unable to prove its connection until Lovestone's report unexpectedly revealed it. Ruthenberg testifies as a witness at the trial of Wm. Z. Foster last month, swore he did not remember what the "Fred" was.

Claims Credit for Frazier Election.
"The past year," Lovestone's report says, "has seen the party make considerable headway in controlling and guiding the most important labor news agency in the country—the Fred. This agency has been of great service to us, especially, in meeting the attacks of Gompers and Hoover."

The Lovestone report also claims that the communists got control of the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota and through their activity there defeated Senator McCumber and elected Governor Frazier to the senate in his place.

LIEDERBACH TO LEAD ANOTHER LEAGUE FIGHT?

Rumored That Former State
Committee Head Will Come
Back to State

Reports are circulated in Nonpartisan League circles here and elsewhere that Alex Liederbach, former state chairman of the Nonpartisan League, would return to North Dakota from California to lead the insurgent movement against followers of A. C. Townley and William Lemke. While Townley has virtually taken himself out of the league, at least for the time being, there is known in the league the Liederbach faction, the "Townley faction" and the "Lemke faction."

Liederbach was state chairman of the league when control of the Courier-News was obtained by the state committee, and later fell because of disruption of forces. The wounds have never healed, however, and Dunn county leaguers are ready to put Townley and Lemke out of any chance of returning to power at any time.

Demands are coming from different sources for the retirement of the former league leaders. Such men as Townley, Wood and Lemke are asked to be forever prohibited from taking any part in league affairs, although they may still remain members by the Sentinel Courier, official league paper of Griggs county, of which Gerald Nye is editor.

Another demand comes from the North Dakota Tidende, a Norwegian paper printed in Fargo, of which J. L. Rindahl is editor, that William Church and the members of his committee resign. The "sin" committed by the executive committee headed by

Mr. Townley was to have given the state committee $1 from every membership he secured. It is said he organized between 13,000 and 14,000 members in this drive.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACK MEN IN CLASS MEET

Seniors Take Honors, Annexing 56 Points to 26 for the Juniors

Bismarck High tracksters held their first tryouts of the season on Saturday, April 28, when the annual class meet was staged. The Seniors took an easy first, annexing 56 points, while the Juniors scored 26 points. The Sophomores and Freshmen were not successful in developing any point winners, but the Richholt school gathered in 8 points in the mile run.

The records made in the meet were good, considering the conditions under which the meet was held. Due to the inclement weather, no track work had been done at the high school for over a week and a half. Not being possessed of a suitable running track kept the athletes from making good time.

Results, however, were very promising, and Coach Houser will no doubt have a formidable aggregation by the time the Slope County Meet is held at Dickinson. Saturday's meet gave the men a good estimate of their ability in certain events and it is planned to hold another meet this Saturday to pick the team to represent Bismarck at Dickinson, May 12th.

The Seniors excelled in the field events, while the Juniors show their best form in the track events. Klein, O'Hare, Murphy, Burke and Danrot were the point winners for the Seniors, while Boelter, Knowles, Scott, and the Svendsgaard brothers did the scoring for the Juniors. The pole vault and the hurdle races were not run off.

Following is the summary:

100 yd. Dash—Boelter, Juniors, first; O'Hare, Seniors, second; Burke, Seniors, third. Time 11.1.

Shot Put—Klein, Senior, first; Danrot, Seniors, second; Burke, Seniors, third. Distance 36 ft. 5 in.

High Jump—Klein, Seniors, first; Murphy, Seniors, second; Boelter and Scott tied for Juniors on third place. Height 5 ft.

Broad Jump—O'Hare, Seniors, first; Klein, Seniors, second; Murphy, Seniors, third. Distance 17 ft. 5 in.

140 yd. Dash—Boelter, Juniors, first; J. Svendsgaard, Juniors, second; H. Svendsgaard, Juniors, third. Time 1:04.

Javelin Throw—O'Hare, Seniors, first; Danrot, Seniors, second; Burke, Seniors, third. Distance 113 ft. 3 in.

Half Mile Run—Murphy, Seniors, first; Knowles, Juniors, second; H. Svendsgaard, Juniors, third. Time 2:34.

NORTH DAKOTA BALL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Will Play 75 Games Under
Rules of Organized Baseball in Four Cities

PRESIDENT IS NAMED

The North Dakota league was formed at Jamestown yesterday.

Representatives of Minot, New Rockford, Jamestown and Bismarck were present. A. Fowler of Jamestown was elected President, and a schedule of 75 games was being worked out this afternoon.

Under the organization, the league will play Class D baseball, the same as the Dakota league last year, and will be known as the North Dakota league.

New Rockford and Carrington will join the league in place of Valley City, the two cities dividing support of a team.

The schedule calls for 75 games, and under the plans Minot will open here May 23.

Incorporated.
Articles of incorporation were filed Saturday afternoon by Judge E. T. Burke, who volunteered without pay his legal services, for the Bismarck Athletic association. Its capital stock is $5,000 and the incorporators are John A. Larson, R. H. Tracy, H. J. Duemeland, V. M. Dresback and J. C. Taylor. They are to serve until the first election. The purposes are stated as follows:

"To manage and control athletic sports within and for Bismarck, N. D., including a baseball team to be affiliated with organized baseball; to own and lease real estate for such purposes; to erect and maintain buildings; fences and all necessary or usual equipment; to sublet the same, to contract with subordinate officials, managers and players and to buy and sell playing-contracts according to the rules of baseball as managed in what is generally known as organized baseball; to charge admission to all games and other entertainment; to sell or lease concessions; to put on entertainments in boxing, wrestling and similar athletics; to lease buildings for such purposes and to do any act necessary to the foregoing general program."

The par value of stock is $10 a share.

J. C. Taylor received a real contribution to the baseball fund Saturday, from Ole Benson, now at Napoleon. He said he read in The Tribune of Clint Draper's stock subscription, and while he couldn't duplicate that he could offer the enclosed contribution. The contribution was a 100,000 Russian ruble note, once worth many thousands of dollars, but now it probably would pay a bathtub's salary for one minute.

Build to Endure with Certain-teed

If roofs could talk they would complain more of the hot sun than all the rain or snow which attacks them. Excessive heat, that dries and parches, is a very searching test of roofing endurance. The unflinching resistance of Certain-teed Roofing to this continual baking process is a most important factor in that through-and-through quality which makes it impervious to rain, snow and sparks as well. Owners of every conceivable type of building, in every section of the country, can testify to the durability of Certain-teed. You, therefore, need not experiment; you may know in advance that you can "build to endure"—at a moderate cost.

ELECTION IN JUNE IS HELD POSSIBILITY

T. G. Nelson Declares Belief People Would Welcome an Early Settlement

LEAGUE MAY ASK IT

Reports that Nonpartisan league leaders will seek a special election to decide the fate of laws of the 1923 legislature proposed to be referred were met here by Theodore G. Nelson, chairman of the Independent Voters' Association executive committee, with the declaration that he believes people are ready to settle the issues as quickly as possible.

Possibility of an election in North Dakota in June or July is seen in the developments in the proposed referendum of the people of ten laws. It was reported here that league leaders would demand the laws be referred either at a special election or in November, 1924.

"The people are so tired of actions on the part of a small group of discontents that they are ready right now to register a vote which will leave no doubt that the work of the 1923 legislature meets their approval," was the reply of Mr. Nelson to these rumors.

"I believe that if put to a vote in June or July, the laws that are proposed to be referred will be approved by such majorities that it will leave no doubt that the people want to settle down to the real business of restoring the credit of the state."

The next regular election in the state is in March, 1924.

WILL SPREAD KNOWLEDGE OF GOOD THINGS TO BE FOUND IN NO. DAK.

A program to spread knowledge among North Dakotans of worthwhile accomplishments in art and culture to be found in the state will be inaugurated by the division of art, North Dakota Federation of Women's clubs, of which Miss Bertha H. Palmer of this city is chairman.

"Our own people know very little about the things of value in art we have in North Dakota," Miss Palmer said, explaining the purpose of the effort. "People from outside find many good things in the state which to us are commonplace. We spread a knowledge of what we have among our own people."

Ten general subjects are listed, on which exhaustive information will be sought, for distribution to the women's clubs of the state. It is expected the program will be completed by next October.

One subject, that of North Dakota clay ware, and its possibilities, will be covered by Miss Margaret Cahel, assistant professor of ceramics, University of North Dakota. Miss Ella Whipperman of Hankinson has taken the subject, "Uses of North Dakota Grasses," which will include a study of the subject from the time North Dakota prairies, upon the great feeding grounds of the North American bison, M. R. Gilmore of the state historical society will discuss "Art Native to North Dakota."

Study Sakakawea History.

An interesting study, approached from a different angle than heretofore, will be the history of the movement resulting in the erection of the statue of Sakakawea, "the bird woman," who guided the Lewis and Clark expedition on the state capital grounds. This statue, according to Miss Palmer, is recognized as one of the few Indian statues in the United States considered a faithful reproduction and ranks high as a work of art. Dr. O. J. Libby will tell of taking three Indians to Chicago to pose before Leonard Crunelle, sculptor. Joseph Packineau, Sr., of Elbowoods, an Indian, will tell of

EVERY DAY IN EVERY WAY ELKS MINSTRELS GET SNAPPIER AND SNAPPIER, CLINT DRAPER CHANTS

New Specialties to Feature Annual Production at Auditorium Here on May 4 and 5. Lively Surprises Are Promised.

"Day by day in every way the Elks minstrels show is getting better and better. More talent is being added to the cast, new song numbers are being rehearsed and new bits of stage business are being introduced in connection with the different acts. This year's show will open with a music store scene, with George Russ as the genial proprietor who tries to satisfy the most exacting and temperamental customers. Many clever comedy lines are introduced in this act, in which about twenty people will appear. Specialties by George Russ, Joe Breslow, Henry Deumeland, H. H. Finner, George Goldard, Frank Gale and Clint Draper will make this a most interesting part of the performance. Many instrumental numbers will be introduced in the show—banjo, zither, guitar, harmonica and two instruments of an old nature being brought in to play. A feature number of the show will be the toy number, in which several members of the cast will appear as mechanical soldiers. This is a novelty of Foreign origin and is really something different in minstrelsy.

"The dances of minstrelsy are the final decendants of the eccentric dances of the negro race and were first brought to the attention of the American people on the Southern plantations, and it was here the

Mrs. Hannah L. Grant of the Ft. Belkorth reservation, who served as chief model for Crunelle. He also will give the Gros Ventre version of Sakakawea's guidance of Lewis and Clark. A grandson of Sakakawea is still living, Miss Palmer said, being known as "Bullseye" and occupying a home near Sheel Creek, Ft. Belkorth reservation.

A study of the work of Margaretha E. Heiser, an eastern artist, who found in years' residence in North Dakota in 1910 subjects for some of the best Indian portraits of the country will be given. Three of her photographs were presented to the state to be hung in the capitol. They now are in the state historical society museum, but the club women plan to have them placed in the capitol cyrindex. Photographic copies of the portraits of Miss Heiser will be included in the distribution to be made to clubwomen.

Miss Palmer also is searching for a record of all North Dakota monuments, and stories of their origin. She has located 17 monuments in the following places: five in Fargo, two in Ft. Yates, two in Bismarck and one each at Lisbon, near Merrickourt, Grand Forks, Mayville, Grafton, Wall, Balla, Billshoro and the Rosevear monument, the foundation for which has been laid at Medora.

Many Beauty Spots.

Beautiful spots in North Dakota will be told in photographs and specially written stories. Picturesque and historic places to be described will include the Chateau de Mores at Medora, the B. T. ranch, the Peaceful Valley ranch and the Rosevear mountains and the Killdeer mountains. A survey of replicas and copies of works of art at state institutions is to be conducted, and also a survey to discover what originals are in the state. Miss Palmer already has received letters, aiding her in her work, from L. B. Hanna, J. G. Hallam, Paul Fjelde, Mrs. Fred L. Graham, Mrs. N. C. Young, Margaret-Cahel and Joseph Packineau, Sr.

Commissioner of Immigration J. H. Worst declared today.

There is more activity this spring upon the part of booster or other clubs in the various counties of the state than for many years, he asserted. Dr. Worst urges local associations be formed to cooperate with the state department and to supplement its work.

A Benson county organization which has among its leaders S. B. Hagne, proposes to send a representative to an Iowa county to make a house to house canvass to bring settlers to Benson county, he said. The Stanley Commercial club also is taking direct action in this regard. Hagne is expressed by Dr. Worst that the present year is one of the best for local organizations to work.

He urges compilation of booklets and distribution of them among friends "back east" in letters sent to former homes and friends by North Dakotans.

Signed at Angora, Turkish Nationalist Capital, Dispatches Say

London, April 30.—The convention under which Rear Admiral Colby M. Chester, retired, and his associates were granted development concessions in Anatolia has been signed at Angora, the Turkish nationalist capital, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Constantinople.

Announcement of ratification by the Turkish nationalist assembly of the Chester railway and mining convention was made at Angora on April 10. Intense interest was aroused by the announcement that an American enterprise had been successful in obtaining development rights of such magnitude.

While the agency message from Constantinople gives no details it seems probable that the agreement between the Turkish government and the Chester syndicate has been put in final and formal terms and that the signatures of government officials and representatives have been attached, according to the information reaching Constantinople.

"Tanlac brushed away every sign of my indigestion, gave me an appetite keen as a razor, and built me up twenty pounds," declared Tom Baker, well-known interior decorator, 1422 Logan Ave. N., Minneapolis, Minn.

"My stomach was so badly out of order that after eating I would bloat with gas till my heart palpitated fearfully, and I was so weak and nervous I could hardly handle a paint brush. I was just about run-down to the limit, and would get so dizzy while doing overhead work, like ceiling decoration, it was a terrible strain on me."

"But now, when my friends meet me, their eyes fairly twinkle with surprise over my fine health. My nerves are steady, and where I used to roll and toss night after night I now sleep like a schoolboy. I'm strong as an ox, always ready for any big job, and simply cannot praise Tanlac too highly."

FROM IMMIGRANT TO U. S. SENATOR, IS STORY OF KNUTE NELSON'S CAREER

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—Minnesota and the northwest was shocked to hear of the sudden death of Knute Nelson, senior United States senator from the Gopher state—the "grand old man of Minnesota."

Last winter Senator Nelson had suffered from influenza, but he seemed to have recovered completely. Those most intimately associated with him, however, said that he was frequently depressed in spirits and that at no time since the death of his wife twenty months ago had he been the buoyant, resourceful, "son of a gun" of old.

The death of the woman who had stood by and counseled through more than half a century of vigorous political activity disheartened him, and although he worked zealously during the last session of congress it was apparent that life had lost one of its zest for the veteran legislator.

Had Varied Career His life portrayed, as did that of few, the story of achievement and progress in the northwest, it was said, and a study of his life brings to light all the circumstances and events that Americans are fond of picturing in an illustrious career.

Immigrant, orphan, penniless newsboy, backwoods student, civil war soldier, lawyer, pioneer, United States representative, governor and senator are the steps by which he proceeded to achievement. For fifty-two years he held public office and he died in his fifth term as United States senator, the oldest member of the upper branch of congress.

He was born in Voss, Norway, February 2, 1843, a little village in a narrow valley near the city of Bergen. Rough land and little water afforded poor pasture, and the peasant father in 1861 set off for America to find a new home, leaving the family to come later. The father died of cholera.

Not content to remain in Norway the mother and the youthful Knute set out for America themselves, bound for Chicago where relatives lived. They landed at New York in 1849, "worse than penniless," the senator was accustomed to explain in later years. The family was $45 in debt.

Delivered Papers in Chicago In Chicago Knute Nelson took his first job, the delivery of newspapers. When he was eight years old his mother married again and the family went to a sandy farm in Walworth county, Wisconsin. Here he received his first education.

At the age of 15 he entered the academy at Albion, Wis., after the family had moved to the vicinity of Deerfield. He went to the master of Albion Academy and explained that he intended getting an education despite the fact that he had no money.

The fall of Fort Sumter interrupted his stay at the academy. Swayed by a patriotic address by a recruiting he enlisted without the consent of his mother and he served for three years as a private and noncommissioned officer. He took part in the capture of Fort Jackson, St. Phillips and New Orleans, in the siege of Vicksburg and in the battles of Baton Rouge, Camp Bilan and Franklin. In the fighting at Port

FRIENDS SEE A GREAT CHANGE

Tom Baker Gains 20 Pounds And Looks And Feels Like Different Man

"Tanlac brushed away every sign of my indigestion, gave me an appetite keen as a razor, and built me up twenty pounds," declared Tom Baker, well-known interior decorator, 1422 Logan Ave. N., Minneapolis, Minn.

"My stomach was so badly out of order that after eating I would blurt with gas till my heart palpitated fearfully, and I was so weak and nervous I could hardly handle a paint brush. I was just about run-down to the limit, and would get so dizzy while doing overhead work, like ceiling decoration, it was a terrible strain on me."

"But now, when my friends meet me, their eyes fairly twinkle with surprise over my firm health. My nerves are steady, and where I used to roll and toss at night after I now sleep like a schoolboy. I'm strong as an ox, always ready for any big job, and simply cannot praise Tanlac too highly."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

THIS DANCING CRAZE HAS GONE BEYOND THE LIMIT—THE THREE-MILE LIMIT

Police are now prohibiting dancing for more than 12 consecutive hours in New York City, so these couples danced from an auto truck, to a pier, to a boat and sailed out beyond the three-mile limit and the law. But they all succumbed to seasickness, before they shattered any record.

Far Rockaway and Coney Island, two of New York's famous summer resorts, were being attacked by fire at the same time. Above is a scene at the Far Rockaway fire where several hotels and bathing pavilions were burned with a loss of $350,000. The loss at Coney Island was almost as great.

Lausanne, April 30.—An official protest against "Russia being arbitrarily kept out of the conference" was sent to the Near East Peace conference today by M. Vorovsky, the Soviet representative here. He declared that such a decision was in direct violation of the terms of the invitation sent to Russia by Great Britain, France and Italy preceding the first Lausanne conference in November, 1922.

Billings, Mont., April 30.—Chief Two-Leggings, head of the River Crows and one of the most famous Indians in inter-tribal warfare, is dead at his ranch eight miles south of Hardin of heart trouble, aged 76. In the early days he went on many war parties against Cheyennes, Black Feet and Sioux.

FROM IMMIGRANT TO U. S. SENATOR, IS STORY OF KNUTE NELSON'S CAREER

St. Paul, Minn., April 30.—Minnesota and the northwest was shocked to hear of the sudden death of Knute Nelson, senior United States senator from the Gopher state—the "grand old man of Minnesota."

Last winter Senator Nelson had suffered from influenza, but he seemed to have recovered completely. Those most intimately associated with him, however, said that he was frequently depressed in spirit, and that at no time since the death of his wife twenty months ago had he been the buoyant, cheerful, "sentimental" of old.

The death of the woman who had stood by and comforted him more than half a century of vigorous political activity disheartened him, and although he worked zealously during the last session of congress it was apparent that life had lost some of its zest for the veteran legislator.

Had Varied Career His life portrayed, as did that of few, the story of achievement and progress in the northwest, it was and, and a study of his life brings to light all the circumstances and events that Americans are fond of picturing in an illustrious career.

Immigrant, orphan, penniless, news-boy, backward student, civil war soldier, lawyer, pioneer, United States representative, governor and senator are the steps by which he proceeded to achievement. For fifty-two years he held public office and he died in his fifth term as United States senator, the oldest member of the upper branch of congress.

He was born in Voss, Norway, February 2, 1843, a little village in a narrow valley near the city of Bergen. Rough land and little water afforded poor pasture, and the peasant father in 1861 set off for America to find a new home, leaving the family to come later. The father died of cholera.

Not content to remain in Norway the mother and the youthful Knute set out for America. They themselves, bound for Chicago where relatives lived. They landed at New York in 1849, "worse than penniless," the senator was accustomed to a plain in later years. The family was $10 in debt.

Delivered Papers in Chicago In Chicago Knute Nelson took his first job, the delivery of newspapers. When he was eight years old his mother married again and the family went to a sandy farm in Walworth county, Wisconsin. Here he received his first education.

At the age of 15 he entered the academy at Albion, Wis., after the family had moved to the vicinity of Decatur. He went to the master of Albion Academy and explained that he intended getting an education despite the fact that he had no money.

The fall of Fort Sumter interrupted his stay at the academy. Swayed by a patriotic address by a recruiting he enlisted without the consent of his mother and he served for three years as a private and noncommissioned officer. He took part in the capture of Fort Jackson, St. Philip, and New Orleans, in the siege of Vicksburg and in the battles of Baton Rouge, Camp Brann and Franklin. In the fighting at Fort

HOLD CREAM GRADE SCHOOL

Reynolds and Staff at Jamestown Today For That Purpose

A cream grading school will be held at Jamestown today and tomorrow under the supervision of W. F. Reynolds, state dairy commissioner, preparatory to putting into effect May 1 the purchase of cream on grades. In addition to supervisors creamery men from all parts of the state met with Mr. Reynolds to receive instructions.

Protests made by the Town Crier club of Dickinson against the system will not prevent its being put into effect, Mr. Reynolds declared emphatically before leaving for Jamestown.

He characterized statement made in resolutions of the Dickinson Town Crier club as "unfair to western North Dakota" and "mightily poor advertising that the state don't deserve."

"Their statement would lead one to believe that wild onion, which imparts a flavor to butter that makes it practically unsaleable is to be found all over western North Dakota," Mr. Reynolds said. "That is not true. You may go through pasture after pasture and find no trace of it, and at best the wild onion season is not more than 21 to 30 days in length. Last year, the only year of which I have definite record, it lasted but 15 days. You never find it in pasture that have been cultivated."

He said when he proposed cream grading regulations, the enemies of the state demanded that cream having wild onion flavor be classed as entirely unsaleable.

SENATOR NELSON DEAD

The passing of Senator Knute Nelson, Minnesota's grand old man, takes from the United States Senate a faithful public servant. He leaves a record that will prove an inspiration to hundreds of thousands of others who begin life with no more advantage than he. Born in Norway he came to the United States at the age of six years, was educated here, enlisted in the service of his country at the first opportunity, when the Civil War broke out, was wounded, later was admitted to the bar and served in many public capacities before he was elected United States Senator. He served as Congressman, Governor and United States Senator, his career covering a period of forty years. He was the oldest member of the United States Senate, and had served 28 years as Senator.

Senator Nelson was known as an indefatigable worker. He was endowed with a powerful mentality, and possessed courage in his convictions which made him a strong protagonist, and won him great respect.

His adherence to principle throughout his long career, and his refusal to bend to passing whims or prejudice, set an example which may be well followed by public officials, in high or low estate.

WHERE PROGRESS IS BACKWARD

The American system of government is one of checks and balances, and upon this theory many students of government have held that the initiative, referendum and recall have a place in the system. The fact that in actual practice they become often simply instruments of agitation or politics has caused many of the original advocates of these procedures in government either to class them as total failures or to urge a strict regulation of their use.

In North Dakota an election is held. Two hundred thousand voters go to the polls and elect men to the legislature understanding that they will legislate along certain lines. Then 7,000 names on a petition are sufficient to hold up the law, to destroy the effect of many laws intended to meet emergency conditions and to force an election on others. In effect, minority rule is substituted for majority rule.

North Dakota now is threatened with another election, to cost the state probably $300,000 to $400,000, to disturb business conditions and to engender new bitterness.

Many states have found that the initiative, referendum and recall have been but instruments of agitation and resentment, have found their election ballots cluttered up with scores of questions which the majority of voters can not be expected to inform themselves with sufficient thoroughness to cast an intelligent vote. Often important questions thus are decided upon prejudice and political adherence, and not upon the basis of a thorough study expected of the men the people elect to the legislatures.

COMMUNISM'S CLAIMS

Many good citizens of North Dakota who helped defeat Senator Porter J. McCumber in the belief that they were merely exercising political prejudice, may not feel complimented to read that a representative of the Communist party of America, subservient to the Russian Internationale, engaged in formulating world revolution, claims that the Communists engineered the defeat of Senator McCumber.

FINIS

For three years the allies have been dynamiting the great fortifications built by the Germans on Helgoland. German scientists "fear" the explosions have so shattered the underlying rock that the sea will soon entirely annihilate the whole island. Too good to be true.

Another echo of the big war from Washington, where it becomes known that about 1188 million dollars will be the damages demanded of Germany by Uncle Sam. This covers all government and citizens' claims, including Lusitania losses. Balancing this against what the war cost us, we'll realize about five cents on the dollar. And that's an extravagant estimate. But safety is cheap at any price.

STARS

The pettiness of ourselves and the so-called troubles that worry us is emphasized by the Harvard astronomers' report that 850 nebulae are discovered in one photograph of the heavens taken in Peru. Each nebula is a luminous gaseous mass. Many of them are whole solar systems in the making, just as the sun, moon, earth and other planets once swirled together in the form of gas.

A single grain of sand, thrown into the Pacific Ocean, is smaller by comparison than our earth in the vast universe. Human vanity is the most ridiculous of all jokes.

MOB

A negro, caught picking a stenographer's pocket on an elevated train in New York City, is arrested. Cries of "Get a rope!" and "String him up!" It takes several squadrons of police reserves to keep the crowd from lynching him.

Alone, not one person in that crowd would have thought of interfering at all, let alone hang. The mob spirit is contagious, temporary insanity quickly becomes epidemic. That's why a nation does childish ridiculous things when at war.

WRANGLE

France is not too busy in the Ruhr to protest against Turkey granting an oil concession to American interests. She forgets Napoleon, who might have been successful if he hadn't tried to eat too many pies at once.

You probably think: "What do I care about this oil concession? My money isn't involved. I won't get anything out of it."

However, the big wars usually start over the private affairs of a few individuals. The World War's original cause was the desire of German capitalists to build a railroad from Berlin to Bagdad.

A "FULL CREW" LAW FOR FARMERS

There is something more than satire in the joke "full crew" farm bill recommended for passage by the agricultural committee of the lower house of the Minnesota legislature. The bill paraphrases the "full crew" bill sought in Minnesota by railroad workers and applies its terms to the operation of a farm, requiring the farmer to have one milker for each six cows or fraction thereof, and a herdsman to watch the herd, fix farm wages at the average of the wage of plumbers, bricklayers, plasterers and carpenters, and requires the farmer to furnish a bond to guarantee that neither he nor his employees will work more than six days a week and will conform to other requirements of the law.

This bit of facetiousness brings out in bold relief the absurdity of some of the labor laws that have been passed and others that are proposed. This refers to laws that are aimed not to protect the worker in his right to do an honest day's work for a fair return, but to limit by law as far as possible the physical and mental effort he will be required to make for a maximum of wages, and by creating two or three or more jobs where one ought to grow.

It is just as logical to require a farmer to hire one farmhand for each 40 acres, as it is to tell a railroad the number of employees to whom it must give wages and transportation in the operation of a train. Society has every right to protect the worker against being overworked or underpaid. It certainly has no right, however, to tell the employer how many men he must hire to do a specific job. It is his business to determine how well and how quickly he wants that job done and the worker's business to do an honest day's work, leaving the management of the business to the employer.

It is the right of labor to be selfish in its efforts at self-betterment and to obtain all that is possible by way of wages and concessions from the employer. It is not, however, the duty of society to pay that selfishness the force of law as is done in the "full crew" legislation and similar enactments. If the theory of the "full crew" law were carried out to its ultimate conclusion it would lead to absurdity indeed.

The farm legislation quoted is as sound economically as the "full crew" railroad bill. It probably would result in a price of 20¢ a quart for milk and other farm prices in keeping. This may not be the concern of labor, but it certainly is the concern of society. If the worker chooses to do half a day's work for a day's pay, it is his job to try and collect the wage, but certainly it is not the obligation of society to legislate him into that dishonest position. Chicago Journal of Commerce.

A DISGUISED TAX

The proposal for the stamping of a federal number on automobile engines and bodies as a supposed safeguard against theft, the cost being assessed at two dollars, to be collected from each auto-owner, is of course merely another auto tax in disguise. Despite the assertion that it will protect owners just the same as they once protected themselves by branding their cattle and horses, there is no assurance whatever that the stamping of another number on machines would deter thieves any more than the stamping of the original numbers by the makers, which are made a part of the state license list.

The bootlegging field has shown that the determined lawbreaker is no more afraid of breaking a federal law than any other. It used to be that a man inclined toward crime flouted the laws of the towns and cities and even the state, but stopped with a sudden jolt before breaking one of Uncle Sam's laws. That time has passed, and today the man bent upon breaking a law doesn't show any more respect for a federal law than he does one enacted by the state. We can see nothing to the proposed auto number law but another chance to gouge auto owners.—Hazen Star.

ONE FORGOTTEN

"An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth" is an old, old maxim born in the old Mosaic law, but down through the ages it has lasted, the vengeance rule invoked wherever the primal passions of mankind have weakened as they have today.

By the very manner of Martin Tabert's death comes the cry for vengeance upon the man, already named in a criminal indictment, for his death. A nation which has prided itself upon its own humanity, has paused aghast at the revelations each day's investigations brings forth. The world has learned the story of Florida's penal camp horror and felt, almost as with the doomed lad, the cruel sting of the electric chair.

In the clamor of the world for justice, in the very sympathy for Tabert's dripping wounds there has been one forgotten, unmentioned almost in the tales that have been told. In a farm house near Munich, N. D., today sits a woman bearing upon her bowed shoulders the blunt of the sorrow burden that came with Martin Tabert's passing.

She is Martin Tabert's mother.

The mercy of eternity came at last to end the boy's pain. In the heat of the mother there are scars that even time itself can never heal.—Elgin News.

WE'RE GOING TO HAVE A HARD TIME EXPLAINING

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

WEEK'S CHIEF EVENTS BRIEFLY TOLD

Turk Concession—Sugar—Pan-Americanism

BY CHARLES P. STEWART,
NEA Staff Writer.

The international dispute the Turks have started by granting that concession to Admiral Chester looks bigger every day.

After studying the papers, "The Literary Digest" says: "America's clash with Great Britain and France will come, not over the Ruhr, but over Turkey; this is the fear of many editors who note the British and French reactions to the Turkish concession."

The same publication quotes "Paris correspondents" as saying, if the American government backs the concession, "a diplomatic incident of the first importance will result."

The plan of such vast scope that one authority speaks of it as providing for "a second Philippines" in Asiatic Turkey.

Rather Puzzling, What?

His speculation, not the tariff, makes sugar so high, the government has decided.

An injunction against the speculators has been asked. If it sticks, injunctions against speculators in other kinds of food may be sought, too.

The Federal Tariff Commission also has been probing the sugar situation. The commission reports that the duty on sugar has nothing to do with its price. It reports further that sugar consumers are paying the duty. In conclusion, the commission reports that it is investigating and hopes, presently, to have something to report.

Pan-American Conference.

The Pan-American Conference at Santiago, Chile, is wrestling with a proposal to have representatives at future conferences appointed in a new way.

Hitherto their governments have named them. Thus Mexico hasn't had any this time, because her government isn't recognized by the United States. Most Latin American want fair selections made, somehow, by the countries themselves, not by their governments, so as to let unrecognized republics in the United States office. She had one supporter at latest accounts—Brazil. Nobody else.

A scheme for settling international American disputes is being discussed.

Revolt in the Ruhr.

Communism is reported to be threatening the entire German region of the Ruhr, which the French seized with a view to making Germany pay war damages to France.

At Muelheim the rebels gained control of the center of the city, barricaded the streets and there was fighting, in which some lives were lost and minor casualties were numerous. Finally the communists were squelched but further trouble is feared.

The French aren't interfering. If Germany doesn't like such disorders, they say, let her pay up.

Trouble in Italy

Premier Mussolini's Fascist government in Italy is having trouble. The Fascists came into power, virtually by a revolution, as enemies of radicalism. Now there's talk of a counter-revolution. Mussolini takes it seriously enough to have forced four of his own cabinet members to quit. He has warned the Fascists that stronger measures than ever are necessary to keep the radicals down.

His supporters are quoted as declaring his overthrow would mean communism.

Business Comes First.

Angry as the British government was at the execution of Monsieny, Butchkevitch, head of Roman Catholicism in Russia, on a charge of conspiring against soviet rule, it's decided to keep the British trade missions at Petrograd and Moscow. At first the London foreign office planned to break all relations with the Bolsheviks. It changed its mind, upon representations from big business interests that they didn't want to lose Russian trade.

The British House of Commons, by a vote of 236 to 14, killed a prohibition bill introduced by the lone dry member, Edwin Sargant, of Dundee.

Numerous opponents of the measure cited the United States as a "horrible example" of how prohibition works. One member asserted there were 4,000 more arrests in the 25 leading American cities in 1922 than in 1918.

Right or wrong, an overwhelming majority of members of the Commons accepted these statements and figures as correct.

May Mean Civil War.

Sun Yat Sen, southern Chinese leader, has sent a note of defiance to the government at Peking, which professes to rule the whole country but which really hasn't any authority over more than about half of it, north of the Yangtze River.

Many good judges think this note will be the signal for a general civil war.

MANDAN NEWS

EVERETT TRUE

BY CONDO

Less than a month after marriage, Jack and I have come to an impasse from which each of us is turning away in a different direction. It is too horrible! Jack's manner of approaching this understanding, as he called it, gave me to understand that he thought I was "the woman who did not care." He was particularly obstinate and foolish about it, and we were quarreling over a little old letter with probably nothing important in it from a man friend to him.

If the letter had been from a woman, I could see why he might have made such a fuss about it. Why he must take this little silly thing that I had done in opening an envelope addressed to him (I hadn't even read the letter, he snatched it from me before I could do so) as a text for what seemed to me was going to be an interminable sermon on personal liberty, I could not conceive.

I determined to forestall him if I could.

"All right Jack, if this is to be a mutual understanding party, please let me state my case first."

"From what you have just said, and the anger which you have shown at my misunderstanding in regard to what I must consider an unreasonable requirement on your part, I must come to the conclusion that even though you disclaim all intention of being a despot you are one."

Jack raised his hand in protest, but I went on. "I will in the future grant your ungraciously implied request that I do not even any letter addressed to you, but I must in turn ask that you do not make a spectacle of me before strangers. In all my life I have never been so mortified as I was this morning when you so furiously snatched that letter out of my hand. Surely you must know what that snatched letter behind the desk was thinking. The whole action was one of those very things that the cartoonists grasp so quickly and from which they make the little tragedies of married life seem only ridiculous and laughable episodes."

Jack's lips curled derisively, and then and there I learned that what women call the tragedies of married life and what are the tragedies of married life to men are very different.

Even after this morning's quarrel I still cannot see why I should be so very particularly annoyed by Jack's men friends, and I told him so, adding that I would be perfectly satisfied to let him read my letters from Beatrice Grimshaw.

Jack snorted. Yes, he fairly snorted in anger. "Wa-wa-wait a minute," he stuttered, "can you not just for a second get away from a concrete and simple action which is comparatively meaningless and look upon the principle behind the thing?"

I don't know why Jack's intimation that it was not possible for me to be reasonable made me so angry, but I was fairly beside myself with rage.

"You will make me think, John Prescott, that there was something in that letter you did not wish me to see."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

Up to the top of Gun Powder Hill in Bing Bang Land climbed Nick and Nancy.

They carried two signal flags with them.

Gun Powder Hill was half way between tin army and the wooden army, and the Twins were going to send messages to both.

General Gold Braid of the wooden army saw them and put up his spy glasses to see better.

Nick started to wig-wag a message with his flags.

This was the message: "PLEASE STOP FIGHTING AND MAKE PEACE!"

General Gold Braid turned to Colonel Stiff Leg. "What do you say, sir?" he asked. "Shall we stop?"

"Never!" declared Colonel Stiff Leg firmly.

"And what do you say, sir?" the general next asked Major Starch Front.

"Never!" cried the major just as firmly as Colonel Stiff Leg had.

And Captain Short Jacket and Lieutenant Chin Strap and Private Buttons all said, "Never," as firmly as school teachers.

"Then signal back 'Never!'" General Gold Braid commanded Private Buttons.

General Hobbledeoh of the tin army got the message also about stopping the war. And he turned to his men for advice.

"What do you say, major?" the general next asked Major Straight Back.

"Never!" roared the major.

And Captain Bow Legs and Lieutenant Shiny Boot and Private Knapsack all cried, "Never," as firmly as professors.

COMMUNISTS ACTIVE IN N. D. WITNESS SAYS

Claimed to Have Obtained
Control of the Nonpartisan
League in State

DEFEATED McCUMBER?

St. Joseph, Mich., April 30.—Jay Lovestone, witness appearing for the defense in the trial of Charles Ruthenberg, accused of violating the Michigan syndicalism law, testified here that the Communist organization obtained control of the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota.

Jay Lovestone, the witness, was appearing as a defense witness for Charles E. Ruthenberg charged with advocating criminal syndicalism.

The defense read Lovestone's report to the community convention at Bridgman last August, where Ruthenberg was arrested. The report disclosed that the Friends of Soviet Russia, Trade Union Relief Committee and Federated Committee were all three subsidiary organizations of the Communist party. The Friends of Soviet Russia alone had collected $725,000 in cash and $450,000 in clothing, medicines and other supplies up to July 15, 1922, the report disclosed.

Witness for Defense.

Lovestone was put on the stand as a defense witness to identify minutes of the executive committee of the Communist party and lay the foundation to prove testimony of Ruthenberg as to the program of the workers party, the legal branch of the underground Communist organization. Ruthenberg is to be recalled when Lovestone completes his testimony.

Lovestone's report to the Bridgman convention, besides disclosing the directing hand behind the relief work, and the purposes for which it was started, also revealed that the Federated Press, a labor press service, is controlled and guided by the American Communists and their Moscow associates.

The Federated Press is known in Community circles by the code word "Fred". The prosecution has known for some time what the "Fred" was but was unable to prove its connection until Lovestone's report unexpectedly revealed it. Ruthenberg testifying as a witness at the trial of Wm. Z. Foster last month, swore he did not remember what the "Fred" was.

Claims Credit for Frazier Election.

"The past year," Lovestone's report says, "has seen the party make considerable headway in controlling and guiding the most important labor news agency in the country—the Fred. This agency has been of great service to us, especially in meeting the attacks of Gompers and Hoover."

The Lovestone report also claims that the communists got control of the Nonpartisan League in North Dakota and through their activity there defeated Senator McCumber and elected Governor Frazier to the senate in his place.

It was directly through our organization of a left bloc in the last Nonpartisan League convention that Townley was disposed of," the Lovestone report says. "The left bloc in the N. P. L. has already scored a large success in defeating McCumber, one of the most powerful leaders of American reaction in the senate and put in his place a radical friend of Soviet Russia."

LIEDERBACH TO LEAD ANOTHER LEAGUE FIGHT?

Rumored That Former State
Committee Head Will Come
Back to State

Reports are circulated in Nonpartisan League circles here and elsewhere that Alex Liederbach, former state chairman of the Nonpartisan League, would return to North Dakota from California to lead the insurgent movement against followers of A. C. Townley and William Lemke. While Townley has virtually taken himself out of the league, at least for the time being, there is known in the league the Liederbach faction, the "Townley faction" and the "Lemke faction."

Liederbach was state chairman of the league when control of the Courier-News was obtained by the state committee, and later fell because of disruption of forces. The wounds have never healed, however, and Dunn county league are ready to put Townley and Lemke out of any chance of returning to power at any time.

Demand is coming from different sources for the retirement of the former league leaders. Such men as Townley, Wood and Lemke are asked to be forever prohibited from taking any part in league affairs, although they may still remain members by the Sentinel Courier, official league paper of Griggs county, of which Gerald Nye is editor.

Another demand comes from the North Dakota Tidende, a Norwegian paper printed in Fargo, of which J. L. Rindahl is editor, that William Church and the members of his committee resign. The "sin" committed by the executive committee headed by

Mr. Townley was to have given the state committee $1 from every membership he secured. It is said he organized between 13,000 and 11,000 members in this drive.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACK MEN IN CLASS MEET

Seniors Take Honors, Annexing 56 Points to 26 for the Juniors

Bismarck High tracksters held their first tryouts of the season on Saturday, April 29, when the annual class meet was staged. The Seniors took an easy first, annexing 56 points, while the Juniors scored 26 points. The Sophomores and Freshmen were not successful in developing any point winners, but the Richholt school gathered in 8 points in the mile run.

The records made in the meet were good, considering the conditions under which the meet was held. Due to the inclement weather, no track work had been done at the high school for over a week and a half. Not being possessed of a suitable running track kept the athletes from making good time.

Results, however, were very promising, and Coach Houser will no doubt have a formidable aggregation by the time the Slope County Meet is held at Dickinson. Saturday's meet gave the men a good estimate of their ability in certain events and it is planned to hold another meet this Saturday to pick the team to represent Bismarck at Dickinson, May 12th.

The Seniors—excellent in the field events, while the Juniors show their best form in the track events, Klein, O'Hare, Murphy, Burke and Danrot were the point winners for the Seniors, while Boelter, Knowles, Scott, and the Svendsgaard brothers did the scoring for the Juniors. The pole vault and the hurdle races were not run off.

Following is the summary:

100 yd. Dash—Boelter, Juniors, first; O'Hare, Seniors, second; Burke, Seniors, third. Time 11.1.

200 yd. Dash—Boelter, Juniors, first; Danrot, Seniors, second; Burke, Seniors, third. Distance 26 ft. 5 in.

High Jump—Klein, Seniors, first; Murphy, Seniors, second; Boelter and Scott tied for Juniors on third place. Height 5 ft.

Broad Jump—O'Hare, Seniors, first; Klein, Seniors, second; Murphy, Seniors, third. Distance 17 ft. 5 in.

440 yd. Dash—Boelter, Juniors, first; J. Svendsgaard, Juniors, second; H. Svendsgaard, Juniors, third. Time 1:04.

Javelin Throw—O'Hare, Seniors, first; Danrot, Seniors, second; Burke, Seniors, third. Distance 113 ft. 3 in.

Half Mile Run—Murphy, Seniors, first; Knowles, Juniors, second; H. Svendsgaard, Juniors, third. Time 2:34.

Discus Throw—Burke, Seniors, first; Klein, Seniors, second; Danrot, Seniors, third. Distance 86 ft. 11 in.

220 yd. Dash—J. Svendsgaard, Juniors, first; O'Hare, Seniors, second; Boelter, Juniors, third. Time 28 sec.

NORTH DAKOTA BALL LEAGUE IS ORGANIZED

Will Play 75 Games Under Rules of Organized Baseball in Four Cities

PRESIDENT IS NAMED

The North Dakota league was formed at Jamestown yesterday.

Representatives of Minot, New Rockford, Jamestown and Bismarck were present. A Fowler of Jamestown was elected President, and a schedule of 75 games was being worked out this afternoon.

Under the organization, the league will play Class D baseball, the same as the Dakota league last year, and will be known as the North Dakota league.

New Rockford and Carrington will join the league in place of Valley City, the two cities dividing support of a team.

The schedule calls for 75 games, and under the plans Minot will open here May 23.

Incorporated.

Articles of incorporation were filed Saturday afternoon by Judge E. T. Burke, who volunteered without pay his legal services; for the Bismarck Athletic association. Its capital stock is $5,000 and the incorporators are John A. Larson, R. H. Tracy, H. J. Duemeland, V. M. Dresbach and J. C. Taylor. They are to serve until the first election. The purposes are stated as follows:

"To manage and control athletic sports within and for Bismarck, N. D., including a baseball team to be affiliated with organized baseball; to own and lease real estate for such purpose; to erect and maintain buildings; fences and all necessary or usual equipment; to submit the same, to contract with subordinate officials, managers and players and to buy and sell playing-contracts according to the rules of baseball as managed in what is generally known as organized baseball; to charge admission to all games and other entertainment; to sell or lease concessions; to put on entertainments in boxing, wrestling and similar athletics; to lease buildings for such purposes and to do any act necessary to the foregoing general program."

The par value of stock is $10 a share.

J. C. Taylor received a real contribution to the baseball fund Saturday, from Ole Benson, now at Napoleon. He said he read in The Tribune of Clint Draper's stock subscription, and while he couldn't duplicate that he could offer the enclosed contribution. The contribution was a 100,000 Russian ruble note, once worth many thousands of dollars, but now it probably would pay a baby's salary for one minute.

You can cook oats now in 3 to 5 minutes, if you ask for Quick Quaker Oats. It's the quickest cooking oats in the world.

The same super-flavor as regular Quaker Oats. Flaked from the finest grains only. But in Quick Quaker the "oats" are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small, thin flakes cook quickly.

Your grocer has both styles—both with that matchless flavor. Ask for Quick Quaker if you want that style.

Build to Endure with Certain-teed

If roofs could talk they would complain more of the hot sun than all the rain or snow which attacks them. Excessive heat, that dries and parches, is a very searching test of roofing endurance. The unflinching resistance of Certain-teed Roofing to this continual baking process is a most important factor in that through-and-through quality which makes it impervious to rain, snow and sparks as well. Owners of every conceivable type of building, in every section of the country, can testify to the durability of Certain-teed. You, therefore, need not experiment; you may know in advance that you can "build to endure"—at a moderate cost.

AWARD PRIZES FOR WACHTER SCHOOL ESSAY

Orval Coleman Takes First Place, and Ila Galloway Second

ARBOR DAY SUBJECTS

Orval Coleman, sixth grade pupil at Wachter school, was awarded first place for his essay on "Arbor Day and Its Meaning to North Dakota."

Second place was taken by Ila Galloway, also of the sixth grade, and third place by Donald Wallace, fifth grade student at Wachter.

The essays which rank in first place from the various schools will be published daily until all have been covered.

Orval Coleman's essay follows: Arbor Day means "tree day." It came to be observed by planting trees. It was started in Nebraska in 1872. In 1875 Kansas and Tennessee started planting trees. North Dakota started in 1882. It was started in Nebraska by the Board of Agriculture as suggested by John Sterling Morton. After many years other states started planting trees and now almost every state in the Union plants trees on a certain day called Arbor Day.

In California, Oregon and Washington there are many big trees. In Washington a farmer used a big tree for a house until he got his house built. The people did not plant the big trees but Nature put them there. Some of the big trees are two or three feet across and three hundred feet high. In Boston a man named Mr. Arnold gave two hundred acres of land and $500,000 for a tree museum. The trees are cared for just like shrubs or flowers. Like Nebraska, North Dakota needs more trees and every year we should plant trees.

If people cut down the trees and do not replace them with other trees there may be floods in the springtime because when the trees are cut down the snow will melt more quickly and rush down the mountains and wash away the soil. In China they cut down all the trees came the snow melted and made floods down the valleys and mountains killing many people and washing away the soil.

On the farm trees are valued because there is shade under the trees and protection from wind for animals and buildings. In the springtime the trees don't let the snow melt so quickly and when it does it runs in the field producing moisture for crops. In the city trees are valued because they furnish shade, attract birds, give protection from winds and dust, and make the city more beautiful. After the trees are a few years old they beautify the city, the birds come and build their nests in them.

There are many places to plant trees. The most important is on the school grounds, public property, yards, and boulevards, and on private property. If there are trees on the school grounds they will make the school more beautiful.

The most practical trees to plant is maple and ash. Others are box-elder, oak, elm and evergreen trees. Shrubs or hedges can be planted along the sidewalk in people's yards. Lilacs, snowball and spiraea are flower bushes that can be planted in the front yard.

May 4th has been set aside by Gov. Nestos as Arbor Day and should be observed by planting trees on public property and private property. Arbor Day speaks for the future like the old Scandinavian who called his son to him and said, "Put a tree in the ground some where and when you are gone someone will be grateful for that tree."

ORVAL COLEMAN, Sixth Grade.

CAPITOL

One picture that has appealed most deeply to the American public is Rupert Hughes' story of home and mother, "The Old Nest." Its appeal was to the fundamental instinct which makes the home the foundation of our democracy. Pursuing the same line of thought, Rupert Hughes has made another, Goldwyn photoplay, "Remembrance," coming to the Capitol theatre on Monday for two days, which is a companion piece to "The Old Nest." It pictures Father in just as intimate and sympathetic a vein as the earlier photoplay represented Mother. It has "heart interest" in the same degree; the human, homely touches which make a photoplay so appealing; the comedy which life

THE ELTINGE.

A windless night on the desert; soft moonlight falling on the sands cooling from the heat of the day; the silence unbroken save for the rumination in the camel corral; a youth on his way to the Holy Land; a beautiful girl, fleeing from a brutal husband.

Under such circumstances was born a romance that neither the youth nor the girl believed could be shattered until death parted them. They had met in a strange manner and love had come to them in the desert. The past was no longer even a memory; they lived in the present and in the future.

Their travels brought them to the city of Damascus, the ancient city where civilization had met rebuffs throughout the centuries of its history. Customs of thousands of years ago still lived—and five times a day the muezzin, standing on the parapet of the minaret, called to the faithful to fall to their knees, face the east and pray to Allah.

And it was in this city that the youth and the girl were brought up short to face stern realities. The voice from the command to worship, seared their souls. To them it was more portentous than the Mohammedans who went through their ritual automatically. To them it meant the end of their romance, for it reminded them that they were not free to love—that the one was still wed and that the other was fitting himself for clerical orders and was in duty bound to bring a severance to their relations.

This is a portion of the story "The Voice From the Minaret," the Norma Talmadge picture now showing at the Eltinge theatre for three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Eugene O'Brien again appears with Norma as leading man.

AWARD PRIZES FOR WACHTER SCHOOL ESSAY

Orval Coleman Takes First Place, and Ila Galloway Second

ARBOR DAY SUBJECTS

Orval Coleman, sixth grade pupil at Wachter school, was awarded first place for his essay on "Arbor Day and Its Meaning to North Dakota."

Second place was taken by Ila Galloway, also of the sixth grade, and third place by Donald Wallace, fifth grade student at Wachter.

The essays which rank in first place from the various schools will be published daily until all have been covered.

Orval Coleman's essay follows:

Arbor Day means tree day. It came to be observed by planting trees. In 1875 Kansas and Tennessee started planting trees. North Dakota started in 1882. It was started in Nebraska by the Board of Agriculture as suggested by John Sterling Morton. After many years other states started planting trees and now almost every state in the Union plants trees on a certain day called Arbor Day.

In California, Oregon and Washington there are many big trees. In Washington a farmer used a big tree for a house until he got his house built. The people did not plant the big trees but Nature put them there. Some of the big trees are twenty-five feet across and three hundred feet high. In Boston a man named Mr. Arnold gave two hundred acres of land and $160,000 for a tree museum. The trees are cared for just like shrubs or flowers. Like Nebraska, North Dakota needs more trees and every year we should plant trees.

If people cut down the trees and do not replace them with other trees there may be floods in the springtime because when the trees are cut down the snow will melt more quickly and rush down the mountains and wash away the soil. In China they cut down all the trees upon the mountains and when spring came the snow melted and mud floods down the valleys and mountains killing many people and washing away the soil.

On the farm trees are valued because there is shade under the trees and protection from wind for animals and buildings. In the springtime the trees don't let the snow melt so quickly and when it does it runs in the field producing moisture for crops. In the city trees are valued because they furnish shade, attract birds, give protection from winds and dust, and make the city more beautiful. After the trees are a few years old they beautify the city, the birds come and build their nests in them.

There are many places to plant trees. The most important is on the school grounds, public property, yards, and backyards, and on private property. If there are trees on the school grounds they will make the school more beautiful.

The most practical tree to plant is maple and ash. Others are boxelder, oak, elm and evergreen trees. Shrubs or hedges can be planted along the sidewalk in people's yards. Lilacs, snowball and spiraea are flower bushes that can be planted in the front yard.

May 4th has been set aside by Gov. Nestor as Arbor Day and should be observed by planting trees on public property and private property. Arbor Day speaks for the future like the old Scotchman who called his son to him and said, "Put a tree in the ground some where and when you are gone someone will be grateful for that tree."

ORVAL COLEMAN, Sixth Grade

THE ELTINGE.

A windless night on the desert, cooling from the heat of the day, the silence unbroken save for the commotion in the camel caravan, a youth on his way to the Holy Land, a beautiful girl, fleeing from a brutal husband.

Under such circumstances was born a romance that neither the youth nor the girl believed could be shattered until death parted them. They had met in a strange manner and love had come to them in the desert. The past was no longer even a memory; they lived in the present and in the future.

Their travels brought them to the city of Damascus, the ancient city where civilization had met rebirth throughout the centuries of its history. Customs of thousands of years ago still lived—and five times a day the muezzin, standing on the parapet of the minaret, called to the faithful to fall to their knees, face the east and pray to Allah.

And it was in this city that the youth and the girl were brought up short to face stern realities. The voice from the command to worship, seared their souls. To them it was more portentous than to the Mohammedans who went through their ritual automatically. To them it meant the end of their romance, for it reminded them that they were not free to love—that the one was still wed and that the other was tithing himself for clerical orders and was in duty bound to bring a severance to their relations.

This is a portion of the story "The Voice From the Minaret," the Norma Talmadge picture now showing at the Eltinge theatre for three days, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Edna O'Brien again appears with Norma as leading man.

One picture that has appealed most deeply to the American public is Rupert Hughes' story of home and mother, "The Old Nest." Its appeal was to the fundamental instinct which makes the home the foundation-stone of our democracy. Pursuing the same line of thought, Rupert Hughes has made another Goldwyn photoplay, "Remembrance," coming to the Capitol theatre on Monday for two days, which is a companion piece to "The Old Nest." It pictures Father in just as intimate and sympathetic a vein as the earlier photoplay represented Mother. It has "heart interest" in the same degree; the human, homely touches which make a photoplay so appealing; the comedy which life

NEW WORLD'S RECORD MADE

Fast Track Brings Fast Time at Drake Relays

Des Moines, April 28.—A world's record was smashed, one—possibly two—American records were shattered and 10 Drake records were broken Saturday in the 14th annual Drake relay carnival which attracted more than 1,200 track and field stars, the greatest entry list in the history of the event.

The world's record was made by the crack University of Illinois team in the 440 yard relay, the time being 42.3-10, a tenth of a second faster than the distance has ever been covered before.

An American record in the javelin was established by Milton Angier of Illinois, holder of the mark, who heaved the shaft 203 feet 9 1/2 inches, bettering his record established in 1917 Drake game a year ago by an even foot.

In addition to these undisputed records athletic authorities were unanimous in their opinion that Illinois should be credited with an American record in the 880 yard relay which the Illinois quartet won in 1:27.5-10. This performance is one-tenth slower than the world's record created by B. J. Wefers, Jr., H. Ray, F. K. Loefer and Edward Parrell in 1921. This quartet held the world's record for the 440 made in 1921 which Illinois shattered. No other college team, the coaches claim, has covered the distance as fast as Illinois.

The coaches also claim a world's intercollegiate record for the university of Iowa team in the one mile relay which the Hawkeyes reeled off in 2:15.9-10, one-tenth of a second slower than the world's record made by C. B. Rogers, Earl Ely, Lawrence Brown and Robert Maxam competing as an American Legion team in 1921.

Yankee Stadium No Help To Babe
Comparison With Polo Grounds—Ruth's First Home Run—Recording a Triple—Unusual Freak Play.

By BILLY EVANS
New York, April 30.—The Yankee stadium is being built around Babe Ruth.
I often heard that remark last summer while the park was under construction.
The inference was that the park was being built in such a manner that would assist Ruth in breaking his home-run record.
The day before the opening of the season I went on the field and looked the stadium over. The foul line limits

THE BABE SHARES THE SPOTLIGHT

As a usual thing Babe Ruth is "the whole show" at the Yankee Stadium, but President Harding was somewhat of an attraction himself when he went to see the Yanks defeat the Senators, 4 to 0. Babe very graciously welcomed the president to his province and slammed out a homer for the edification of his distinguished guest.

In left and right field are about the same distance from the plate as at the Polo Grounds. That means that it will be as easy to get a home run at the Polo Grounds as at the Polo Grounds on fly balls that travel just inside the foul line.
The short territory, however, is decidedly limited, and as the playing territory works away from the foul line, the distance from the home plate is rapidly increased.

After giving the field the once over I made the remark that Ruth would find it more difficult to get home runs at the new stadium than at the Polo Grounds.
Ruth in the first game hit a home run. It was a decidedly legitimate one. It would have traveled into the far end of the right field stands at the Polo Grounds.

In the second game Ruth hit a triple that bore out my belief that Ruth would find the stadium a harder place to get home runs than the Polo Grounds.
With the outfield playing deep, Ruth hit a slow curve on the outside that failed to break, far over the head of Left Fielder Joe Harris. The ball struck the left center bleachers in the second round, traveling about 200 feet after first hitting the ground.

I felt positive that the ball would have gone for a home run on any ball park in the American League with the exception of Washington, which has a very deep left field.
After the game I bumped into Major Tom Birmingham, who designed the Yankee stadium. I asked him how far the ball had traveled.
"The distance from the home plate to where the ball struck the bleachers is 500 feet," replied Birmingham. "I would say that the ball traveled about 480 yards on the fly and a high fly at that. On the Polo Grounds it would have been an easy home run."

It didn't take the 1923 season long to notice something unusual in the way of freak plays.
In a National League game at Boston the other day two players were retired at the plate by Catcher Snyder on the same throw from the outfield.
Sound impossible, but here are the details.
With Southworth on second base and Boeckel on first, Bagwell hit the ball far into right field. Would the ball be caught?
The ball struck the right field bleachers, Young taking it on the rebound, throwing it to Frisch, who relayed it to the plate.
Catcher Snyder received the ball just ahead of Southworth and managed to tag both Southworth and Boeckel, completing a most unusual play and retiring the side.
Not even the oldest inhabitant can recall a similar play.

White Sox Have Great Chance to Win, Says Umpire
By NEA SERVICE
Chicago, April 30.—"Don't overlook the Chicago White Sox in looking out the American League pennant," says Barry McCormick, National League umpire.
McCormick worked in the spring series between the Giants and the White Sox, being the National League umpire. He thinks the Sox have a mighty formidable ball club.
"The White Sox certainly looked good to me in the series with the Giants," says McCormick. Gleason's club made the world champs step the distance in every game.
"The Chicago club plays smart baseball. Of course that isn't hard to understand when you remember Schalk is back of the plate and Ed Collins at second.
Chicago is going to have better pitching than most of the big league clubs will get. Gleason has a pitching staff that, with the exception of Faber, is made up of young blood, capable of standing a lot of work."

Southworth believed that Right Fielder Young of the Giants would make the catch and held second base. Boeckel didn't think so and dashed for second.
A Boeckel was almost to second, Southworth decided that Young wouldn't get the ball and dashed madly to third, with Boeckel at his heels.
The ball struck the right field bleachers, Young taking it on the rebound, throwing it to Frisch, who relayed it to the plate.
Catcher Snyder received the ball just ahead of Southworth and managed to tag both Southworth and Boeckel, completing a most unusual play and retiring the side.

Glenn Killinger, one of the greatest football stars the game has ever produced, is not meeting with such great success on the diamond.
While at Penn State, Killinger starred in both football and baseball. Hugo Bezdek, former Pittsburgh manager, now coach of all sports at Penn State, pronounced Killinger ready for the big show when he graduated from State.
As a football player Killinger was a unanimous choice for the All-American team of 1921. In college baseball he also was big.

GLENN KILLINGER IN ATLANTA UNIFORM

A half dozen clubs bid for Killinger's services, the New York Yankees finally landing him.
In spring training he failed to measure up to the big league standard. He was sent to Jersey City in the International League and met with fair success.
This year he is dropped a grade lower, going to the Atlanta team of the Southern Association.
Killinger still feels that he can make good in the majors. He insists this year will tell the tale in his favor.

posed goes through. He is now waiting for word from South Dakota University to make the trip a reality. He has six lettermen on which to build his team, but is having difficulty to find the right man for the keystone sack.

Questions
ONE—It is possible to make a substitution for a base runner, and still have the original player remain in the game?
TWO—In case of rain or muddy field, who is the sole judge as to whether or not the game should be started?
THREE—In case a game is stopped by the umpire, because of rain, is there any time limit as to when the game can be resumed?
FOUR—What happens when the batter strikes at an illegally pitched ball?
FIVE—Is it necessary that the team at the bat make an appeal for the calling of a balk?
Answers
ONE—Only by consent of the captain of the other team.
TWO—The manager or captain of the home team is the sole judge as to the fitness of the field for starting play.
THREE—The time limit formerly was 30 minutes. Now under the new ruling the umpire can wait as long as he sees fit.
FOUR—It counts for a strike or whatever may follow.
FIVE—A balk rests entirely with the judgment of the umpire. There is no necessity or reason for an appeal, although the team at bat often raises the claim.

MAGIC NAMES!

(This Was Written By a Woman)

The influence of advertising is apparent in every turn of my daily life. I find I cannot disregard it. It is always with me, guiding me in my pleasures and in my duties, telling me what I should eat, wear, and use and what I should buy for my family.

I find that there is on the tip of my tongue a multitude of names the mention of which will bring from some shelf nearly everything that I can use in my daily life and in the daily life of my family.

In every instance that name means a very definite promise and assurance of something substantial and which will make me feel completely satisfied about having exchanged my money for it.

Let me say a few things which these names—these old friends of the newspaper and magazine pages—mean to me.

They mean good taste. For certainly I desire to do the thing that I believe discriminating people have judged best.

They mean convenience. It is not necessary to describe the thing I want. Even the most intimate articles may be purchased without embarrassment since the advertisers have given us handy names.

They mean assurance in shopping. There is no indecision. Even before I enter the shop I know what I want to buy.

And certainly they mean satisfaction. For the advertiser whose product is not good cannot continue to advertise. The fact that I have seen a name repeated over and over again assures me that it stands for a product of quality. In speaking that name to the clerk I know I am asking for the best.

I am a more judicious shopper because I buy advertised goods. I patronize the shop that sells them.

SENATOR NELSON DEAD
The passing of Senator Knute Nelson, Minnesota's grand old man, takes from the United States Senate a faithful public servant. He leaves a record that will prove an inspiration to hundreds of thousands of others who begin life with no more advantage than he. Born in Norway, he came to the United States at the age of six years, was educated here, enlisted in the service of his country at the first opportunity, when the Civil War broke out, was wounded, later was admitted to the bar and served in many public capacities before he was elected United States Senator. He served as Congressman, Governor and United States Senator, his career covering a period of forty years. He was the oldest member of the United States Senate, and had served 28 years as Senator.
Senator Nelson was known as an indefatigable worker. He was endowed with a powerful mentality, and possessed courage in his convictions which made him a strong proponent of the cause of the people.
His adherence to principle throughout his long career, and his refusal to bend to passing whims or prejudice, set an example which may be well followed by public officials, in high or low estate.

A "FULL CREW" LAW FOR FARMERS
There is something more than satire in the joke "full crew" farm bill recommended for passage by the agricultural committee of the lower house of the Minnesota legislature. The bill paraphrases the "full crew" bill sought in Minnesota by railroad workers and applies its terms to the operation of a farm, requiring the farmer to have one milker for each six cows or fraction thereof, and a herdsmen to watch the herd, fixer farm wages at the average of the wage of plumbers, bricklayers, plasterers and carpenters, and requires the farmer to employ a band to guarantee that neither he nor his employees will work more than six days a week and will conform to other requirements of the law.
This bit of facetiousness, brings out in bold relief the absurdity of some of the labor laws that have been passed and others that are proposed. This refers to laws that aimed not to protect the worker in his right to work, but to limit work for a fair return, but to limit by law as far as possible the physical and mental effort he will be required to make for a maximum of wages and by creating two or three or more jobs where one ought to grow.
It is just as logical to require a farmer to hire one farmhand for each 40 acres of land, or a railroad the number of employees to whom it must give wages and transportation in the operation of a train.
Society has every right to protect the worker against being overworked or underpaid. It certainly has no right, however, to tell the employer how many men he must hire to do a specific job. It is his business to determine how well and how quickly he wants that job done and the worker's business to do an honest day's work, leaving the management of the business to the employer.
It is the right of labor to be selfish in its efforts at self-betterment and to obtain all that is possible way of wages and concessions from the employer. It is not, however, the duty of society to give that selfishness the force of law as is done in "full crew" legislation and similar enactments. If the theory of the "full crew" law were carried out to its ultimate conclusion it would lead to absurdities indeed.
The farm legislation quoted is as sound economically as the "full crew" railroad bill. It probably would result in a price of 20c a quart for milk and other farm prices in keeping. This may not be the concern of labor, but it certainly is the concern of society, if the worker chooses to do half a day's work for a day's pay, it is his job to try and collect the wage. The plan of such sort, except that one authority speaks of it as being for a "second Philippine" in Asia-Turkey.

Serialized in the Bismarck Tribune
Less than a month after marriage, and Jack and I have come to an impasse from which each of us is turning away in a different direction. It is too horrible in Jack's manner of approaching this understanding, as he called it, gave me to understand that he thought I was "the woman who did not care." He was particularly obstinate and foolish about it, and we were quarreling over a little old letter with probably nothing important in it from a man friend to him.
If the letter had been from a woman, I could see why he might have made such a fuss about it. Why he must take this little silly thing that I had scribbled on an envelope addressed to him (I hadn't even read the letter, he snatched it from me before I could do so) as a text for what seemed to me was going to be an interminable sermon on personal liberty, I could not conceive.
I determined to forestall him if I could.
"All right Jack, if this is to be a mutual understanding party, please let me state my case first."
From what you have just said, and the anger which you have shown at my misunderstanding in regard to what I must consider an unreasonable requirement on your part, I must come to the conclusion that even though you disclaim all intention of being a despot you are one."
Jack raised his hand in protest, but I went on. "I will in the future grant you ungraciously implied request that I do not open any letter addressed to you, but I must in turn ask that you do not make a spectacle of me before such strangers. In all my life I have never been so mortified as I was this morning when you so ungraciously snatched that letter out of my hand. Surely you must know what that smug clerk behind the desk was thinking. The whole action was one of those very things that the cartoonists grasp so quickly and from which they make the little tragedies of married life seem only 'delicious and laughable episodes.'"
Jack's lips curled derisively, and then, and there I learned that what women call the tragedies of married life and what are the tragedies of married life to men are very different.
Even after this morning's quarrel I still cannot see why I should be so very particular about letters from Jack's men friends, and I told him so, adding that I would be perfectly satisfied to let him read my letters from Beatrice Grimshaw.
Jack snorted. Yes, he fairly snorted in anger. "Wa-wa-wait a minute," he stuttered, "can you not just for a second get away from a concrete and simple action which is comparatively meaningless and look upon the principle behind the thing?"
I don't know why Jack's intimation that it was not possible for me to be reasonable made me so angry, but I was fairly beside myself with rage.
"You will make me think, John Prescott, that there was something in that letter you did not wish me to see."

Up to the top of Gun Powder Hill in Bing Bang Land climbed Nick and Nancy.
They carried two signal flags with them.
Gun Powder Hill was half way between tin army and the wooden army, and the Twins were going to send messages to both.
General Gold Braid of the wooden army saw them and put up his spy glasses to see better.
Nick started to wig-wag a message with his flags.
This was the message: "PLEASE STOP FIGHTING AND MAKE PEACE!"
General Gold Braid turned to Colonel Stiff Leg. "What do you say, sir?" he asked. "Shall we stop?"
"Never!" declared Colonel Stiff Leg firmly.
"And what do you say, sir?" the general next asked Major Starch Front.
"Never!" cried the major just as firmly as Colonel Stiff Leg had.
And Captain Short Jacket and Lieutenant Chin Strap and Private Buttons all said, "Never," as firmly as school teachers.
"Then signal back 'Never!'" General Gold Braid commanded Private Buttons.
General Hobbledohy of the tin army got the message also about stopping the war. And he turned to his men for advice.
"What do you say?" he asked Colonel2 Butter Coast. "Shall we stop?"
"Never!" thundered the colonel.
"What do you say, major?" the general next asked Major Straight Buck.
"Never!" roared the major.
And Captain Bow Legs and Lieutenant Shiny Boot and Private Knapsack all cried, "Never," as firmly as professors.
"Then 'never' it is," said General Hobbledohy, and nodded to Private Knapsack to signal back the answer.
When the Twins told the Tinker Man what the soldiers said he sighed.
"Then the war in Bing-Bang Land will have to go on," he said. "I don't know what the Fairy Queen will say, or Santa Claus either."

EVERETT TRUE BY CONDO

STARS
The pettiness of ourselves and the so-called troubles that worry us is emphasized by the Harvard astronomers' report that 850 nebulae are discovered in one photograph of the heavens taken in Peru. Each nebula is a luminous gaseous mass. Many of them are whole solar systems in the making, just as the sun, moon, earth and other planets once swirled together in the form of gas.
A single grain of sand, thrown into the Pacific Ocean, is smaller by comparison than our earth in the vast universe. Human vanity is the most ridiculous of all jokes.
MOB
A negro, caught picking a stenographer's pocket on an elevated train in New York City, is arrested. Cries of "Get a rope!" and "String him up!" It takes several squadrons of police reserves to keep the crowd from lynching him.
Alone, not one person in that crowd would have thought of interfering at all, let alone hang. The mob spirit is contagious, temporary insanity quickly becomes epidemic. That's why a nation does childishly ridiculous things when at war.
WRANGLE
France is not too busy in the Ruhr to protest against Turkey granting an oil concession to American interests. She forgets Napoleon, who might have been successful if he hadn't tried to eat too many pies at once.
You probably think: "What do I care about this oil concession? My money isn't involved. I won't get anything out of it."
However, the big wars usually start over the private affairs of a few individuals. The World War's original cause was the desire of German capitalists to build a railroad from Berlin to Bagdad.

SELLING OF MAY WHEAT IS
BEAR FACTORReports of Abandonment of Winter Wheat Acreage Is Counter-Factor

Chicago, April 30.—Selling out on the part of holders of May contracts who wished to avoid accepting delivery tomorrow had a bearish influence in the wheat market today during the early dealings. July and September were affected as well as May. Favorable weather for completion of spring wheat planting was an additional bearish factor. Estimates, however, indicating that abandonment of winter wheat acreage this season had been exceeded only once in the last 10 years helped somewhat to steady the market. Opening prices which varied from the same as yesterday's finish to 1/2 cent lower May $1.23 to $1.23 1/2 and July $1.12 to $1.12 1/2 were followed by a moderate setback all around. Subsequent temporary lack of buyers together with a forecast of unsettled weather Northwest led to sharp upturn in prices but for the most part the gains failed to hold. The finish was unsettled at 1 cent net lower to 3/4 cent net advance with May, $1.22 1/2 to $1.22 3/4 and July, $1.12 1/2 to $1.12 3/4.

Humane Society Urges Kindness to Animals.
The Humane and Society for the Friendless of North Dakota is making a special effort to get before stock owners the slogan "Be Kind to Animals." This is the motto of the American Education Society and a week in April is known as "Be Kind to Animals Week."

The Society in North Dakota recently prosecuted a man for willfully neglecting his stock. He received the maximum fine and jail sentence. He was an old offender. The officers of the Society repeatedly have to inform stock owners that not only is it inhumane to permit stock to starve, it is also poor business.
Recently one of the officers of the Society found some horses dead in a stable due to starvation where they had remained for weeks, the owner being too indifferent to remove them.
With many owners the motto would appear to be "trust me or die" during the long cold winter many animals perish that otherwise through a little attention could be saved. Such treatment is not only cruel; it is poor economy.

SEES FUTURE FOR ZAP MINE

Receiver's Report Shows Profit in Mining Operations

Mandan, N. D., April 30. The Lucky Strike Coal company with a large mine at Zap, N. D., which was placed in a receivership a year ago, following tangled mining, labor trouble, and complete disorganization, has given promise of paying out in a year or two is the opinion of P. J. Cahill of Wilton, permanent receiver, whose report for the period from August, 1922 to April 1, 1923, has just been filed with creditors.

The report shows 77,852 tons of coal mined in that period which was sold for $197,046.51, which, less operating expense of $169,023.01, government royalty of $2,720.05, and receiver's drawing account of $3,600, left a net profit of $21,693.42.

The total inventory footings show property on hand, including $7,732.61 warrants, accounts receivable, etc., of $221,938.54. All coal sold during the last winter has been collected for with nothing outstanding. The receiver's report indicates a loss of $12,000 on old accounts.

Of the profit made it was necessary to put back into the mining property $19,272.53 on improvements and new machinery which was absolutely necessary to allow the mine to operate, but which were paid for. Of the liabilities listed when the receiver was named upwards of $11,000, the report further indicates a reserve for depletion of the liability accounts the sum of $2,987.70.

The Lucky Strike Mining company was incorporated about three years ago, and stock sales were carried on throughout the state, buyers investing $16,300 in gold notes and $88,900 in capital stock, distributed in small lots to many holder.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD MADE

Fast Track Brings Fast Time
at Drake Relays

Des Moines, April 28.—A world's record was smashed, one—possibly two—American records were shattered and 10 Drake records were broken today in the 11th annual Drake relay carnival which attracted more than 1,300 track and field stars to the city's largest stadium.

The world's record was made by the crew of the University of Illinois team in the 4x100 relay, the time being 1:27.5, a tenth of a second faster than the distance has ever been covered before.

An American record in the javelin was established by Milton Anger of Illinois, holder of the mark, who heaved the shaft 201 feet 9 1/2 inches bettering his record established in the Drake game a year ago by 11 feet 10 inches.

In addition to these undisputed records, athletic authorities were unanimous in their opinion that Illinois should be credited with an American record in the 800 yard relay which the Illinois quartet won in 1:27.5. This performance is one-tenth slower than the world's record set by the University of Illinois.

The coaches also claim a world's record in the 4x100 relay in the one mile relay which the Hawkeyes reeled off in 1:27.5, one-tenth of a second slower than the world's record made by the University of Illinois.

Yankee Stadium
No Help To Babe

Comparison With Polo Grounds — Ruth's First Home Run — Recording a Triple — Unusual Freak Play.

By BILLY EVANS
New York, April 30.—The Yankee stadium is being built around Babe Ruth.

I often heard that remark last summer while the park was under construction.

The inference was that the park was being built in such a manner that would assist Ruth in breaking his home-run record.

The day before the opening of the season I went out and looked the stadium over. The foul line limits in left and right field are about the same distance from the plate as at the Polo Grounds. That means that it will be as easy to get a home run at the stadium as at the Polo Grounds on fly balls that travel just inside the foul line.

The short territory, however, is decidedly limited, and as the playing territory works away from the foul line, the distance from the home plate is rapidly increased.

After going the field the other day I made the remark that Ruth would find it more difficult to get home runs at the new stadium than at the Polo Grounds.

Ruth in the first game hit a home run. It was a decidedly legitimate one. It would have traveled into the foul line at the Polo Grounds.

In the second game Ruth hit a triple that bore out my belief that Ruth would find the stadium a harder place to get home runs than the Polo Grounds.

With the outfield playing deep, Ruth hit a slow curve on the outside that failed to break far over the head of left fielder Lou Harris. The ball struck the left center bleacher on the second bound, traveling about 20 feet after first hitting the ground.

I felt positive that the ball would have gone for a home run on any ball park in the American League with the exception of Washington, which has a very deep left field.

After the game I bumped into Major Tom Birmingham, who designed the Yankee stadium. I asked him how far the ball had traveled.

"The distance from the home plate to where the ball struck the bleachers is 500 feet," replied Birmingham. "I would say that the ball traveled about 180 yards on the fly and a high fly at that. On the Polo Grounds it would have been an easy home run."

It didn't take the 1923 season long to produce something unusual in the way of freak plays.

In a National League game at Boston the other day two players were retired at the plate by Catcher Snyder on the same throw from the outfield.

Sound impossible, but here are the details.

With Southworth on second base and Buckner on first, Hayworth hit the ball far into right field. Would the ball be caught?

Southworth believed that Right Fielder Young of the Giants would make the catch and held second base. Buckner didn't think so and dashed for second.

A Buckner w. l. about its second Southworth decided that Young wouldn't get the ball and dashed boldly to third with Buckner at his heels.

The ball struck the right field bleachers, Young taking it on the rebound throwing it to Lusch, who relayed it to the plate.

Catcher Snyder received the ball just in time of Southworth and managed to tag both Southworth and Buckner on sliding a most unusual play and saving the side.

Not even the modest inhabitant can recall a similar play.

As a usual thing Babe Ruth is "the whole show" at the Yankee Stadium, but President Harding was somewhat of an attraction himself when he went to see the Yankees defeat the Senators, 4 to 0. Babe very graciously welcomed the president to his province. He slammed out a homer for the edification of his distinguished guest.

THE BABE SHARES THE SPOTLIGHT

Kinks o' the Links

Playing on a very heavy course, a player on reaching the green finds that his ball is almost entirely covered with mud, making it utterly impossible for the player to putt with any degree of accuracy. Must the player play a ball in such condition or has he the right to hit the ball, marking the spot, clean same, and then replace it without penalty?

While mud on the ball invariably renders it unfit for play, especially on the putting green, the rules do not recognize the fact. Unless some special ruling has been made, a player in stroke competition could be disqualified and in match play would lose the hole. When matches are played under heavy conditions, a special ruling is usually agreed upon, which gives the player the right to hit and clean the ball without penalty, which is only fair.

Player after using a new ball for two holes and gets on the putting green of the third hole. He elects to change the ball in use and replace it with a new one. The ball in use found to be in perfect condition. Has the player such a right?

The rules specifically state that a player may change a ball only when it is split into separate pieces or a bad crack renders it unfit for play. An opponent if he so desired would have a perfect right to object to using a new ball for one that was in perfect shape, other than having been used in playing two holes.

White Sox Have Great Chance to Win, Says Umpire

By NEA SERVICE
Chicago, April 30.—"Don't ever look the Chicago White Sox in the eye and say they are the American League champions," says Barry McCormick, National League umpire.

McCormick, worked in the spring series between the Giants and the White Sox, being the National League umpire. He thinks the Sox have a mighty formidable ball club.

"The White Sox certainly looked good to me in the series with the Giants," says McCormick. "Gleason has a mighty formidable ball club."

"The Chicago club plays smart baseball. Of course that isn't hard to understand when you remember Shalk is back of the plate and Eddie Collins at second."

"Chicago is going to have better pitching than most of the league clubs. I think Gleason has a pitching staff that with the young blood, Fisher, is up to the young blood, capable of standing a lot of work."

Former Grid Star Fails in Majors, But Insists He Will Deliver

Glenn Killinger, one of the greatest football stars the game has ever produced, is not meeting with such great success on the diamond.

While at Penn State, Killinger starred in both football and baseball. Hugo Bezdek, former Pittsburgh manager, now coach of all sports at Penn State, pronounced Killinger ready for the big show when he graduated from State.

As a football player Killinger was a unanimous choice for the All-American team of 1921. In college baseball he also went big.

A half dozen clubs bid for Killinger's services, the New York Yankees finally landing him.

In spring training he failed to measure up to the big league standard. He was sent to Jersey City in the International League and met with fair success.

This year he is dropped a grade lower, going to the Atlanta team of the Southern Association.

Killinger still feels that he can make good in the majors. He insists this year will tell the tale in his favor.

Do You Know Baseball?

By BILLY EVANS
Questions
ONE—It is possible to make a substitution for a base runner, and still have the original player remain in the game?
TWO—In case of rain or muddy field, who is the sole judge as to whether or not the game should be started?
THREE—In case a game is stopped by the umpire, because of rain, is there any time limit as to when the game can be resumed?
FOUR—What happens when the batter strikes at an illegally pitched ball?
FIVE—Is it necessary that the team at bat make an appeal for the calling of a balk?
Answers
ONE—Only by consent of the captain of the other team.
TWO—The manager or captain of the home team is the sole judge as to the fitness of the field for starting play.
THREE—The time limit formerly was 30 minutes. Now under the new ruling the umpire can wait as long as he sees fit.
FOUR—It counts for a strike or a home run.
FIVE—A balk rests entirely with the judgment of the umpire. There is no necessity or reason for an appeal, although the team at bat often raises the claim.

MAGIC NAMES!

(This Was Written By a Woman)

The influence of advertising is apparent in every turn of my daily life. I find I cannot disregard it. It is always with me, guiding me in my pleasures and in my duties, telling me what I should eat, wear, and use and what I should buy for my family.

I find that there is on the tip of my tongue a multitude of names the mention of which will bring from some shelf nearly everything that I can use in my daily life and in the daily life of my family.

In every instance that name means a very definite promise and assurance of something substantial and which will make me feel completely satisfied about having exchanged my money for it.

Let me say a few things which these names—these old friends of the newspaper and magazine pages—mean to me.

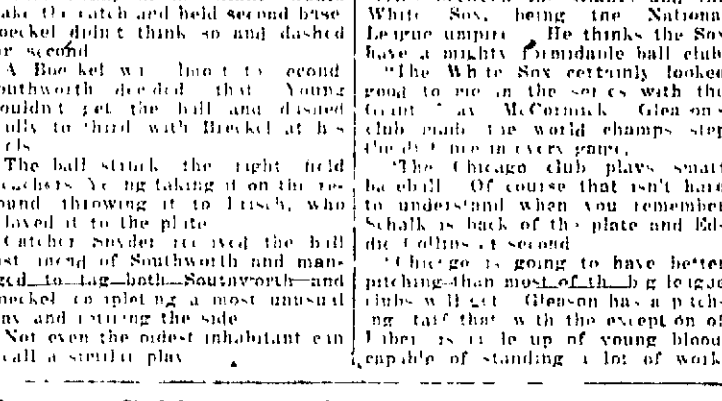

They mean good taste. For certainly I desire to do the thing that I believe discriminating people have judged best.

They mean convenience. It is not necessary to describe the thing I want. Even the most intimate articles may be purchased without embarrassment since the advertisers have given us handy names.

They mean assurance in shopping. There is no indecision. Even before I enter the shop I know what I want to buy.

And certainly they mean satisfaction. For the advertiser whose product is not good cannot continue to advertise. The fact that I have seen a name repeated over and over again assures me that it stands for a product of quality. In speaking that name to the clerk I know I am asking for the best.

I am a more judicious shopper because I buy advertised goods. I patronize the shop that sells them.

GLENN KILLINGER IN ATLANTA UNIFORM

GLENN KILLINGER IN ATLANTA UNIFORM

Glenn Killinger, one of the greatest football stars the game has ever produced, is not meeting with such great success on the diamond.

While at Penn State, Killinger starred in both football and baseball. Hugo Bezdek, former Pittsburgh manager, now coach of all sports at Penn State, pronounced Killinger ready for the big show when he graduated from State.

As a football player Killinger was a unanimous choice for the All-American team of 1921. In college baseball he also went big.

A half dozen clubs bid for Killinger's services, the New York Yankees finally landing him.

In spring training he failed to measure up to the big league standard. He was sent to Jersey City in the International League and met with fair success.

This year he is dropped a grade lower, going to the Atlanta team of the Southern Association.

Killinger still feels that he can make good in the majors. He insists this year will tell the tale in his favor.
